Graduates who have completed an Associate of Applied Science (AAS) or Associate of Arts (AA) in Early Childhood Education can transfer to Northland Pioneer College* to complete their Bachelor of Applied Science in Early Childhood Education (BAS-ECE).

The BAS-ECE degree provides candidates with specialized, professional preparation to teach young children birth through 3rd grade. The BAS builds on Associate Degree pathways in Early Childhood to deepen teaching knowledge and prepares individuals as highly qualified early childhood educators.

Students may choose between two teaching specialties:

Birth to PreK option: for those wanting to specialize in the birth to five age group and does not lead to teacher certification.

K-3rd grade option: for those seeking early childhood teacher certification.

Making the decision to pursue higher education is a significant step, and choosing the right institution is crucial. There are several advantages of choosing to complete your Early Childhood Bachelor of Applied Science degree at Northland Pioneer College, such as:

Affordability

Lower tuition rates mean you can save money on your education. This financial advantage allows you to focus more on your studies and future career.

Smaller Class Sizes

Get personalized attention from your instructors, fostering a supportive and engaging learning environment.

Career-Focused Programs

NPC's program is designed with a strong focus on practical skills and career readiness. NPC's approved Student Teaching Intern Certificate (STIC) option allows eligible candidates to enter into paid teaching contracts during their final semester of the program.

Support Services

Northland Pioneer College offers a range of support services tailored to student needs. These resources are designed to help you succeed academically and professionally, providing the guidance and support you need throughout your college journey.
